CAMPAIGN TO RECYCLE ONE MILLION CELL PHONES TO BE LAUNCHED ON EARTH DAY

Campaign seeks to make cell phone recycling as easy as bottle recycling

This Earth Day, on Friday, April 22, EARTHWORKS will launch "Recycle My Cell Phone," a campaign to recycle 500,000 cell phones in one year, bringing the total number of cell phones recycled to one million or double the current annual U.S. rate. The Recycle My Cell Phone campaign seeks to keep the toxic metals in phones, like lead, mercury and arsenic, out of landfills, save energy and reduce the number of new open-pit mines because phones that cannot be used will be recycled for gold, copper and other valuable metals. OGAP's Durango office will serve as a local site for dropping off used cell phones to be recycled.
